

Sundown National Park - May 2018

It was the long weekend in May so it was a great opportunity to head down to Sundown National Park near Stanthorpe for a two night camping and driving trip. This is always a great weekend away and a favourite place for most of us and a first time down there for some others. It was perfect weather which made the driving fun, can get cold there so a roaring fire each night made for a perfect weekend away.
